MISSION STATEMENT

With change being a constant in our lives, higher education takes on greater significance in preparing students to meet new and unexpected challenges. One challenge involves enriching the global perspective of the curriculum. Truman recognizes its responsibility to Missouri, the nation, and the world in preparing students who possess international understanding and potential for leadership. The University also recognizes that worldwide understanding is a characteristic of liberally educated persons.

Truman recognizes that boundaries between peoples, cultures and countries of the world are becoming less significant. Therefore, the realities and possibilities of globalizing the Truman curriculum at home and abroad will be explored. Expansion of foreign language and culture programs, additional exchange agreements with international institutions, increases in the number of international scholars and students coming to the Truman campus, and increases in the number of Truman students and faculty participating in study abroad programs are identified means of promoting international understanding

ALL STUDY ABROAD EXPERIENCES APPROVED FOR ACADEMIC CREDIT AT TRUMAN FULFILL THE INTERCULTURAL REQUIREMENT OF THE LIBERAL STUDIES PROGRAM.

PROGRAM DESCRIPTIONS

Truman is continuously trying to improve existing programs and develop new ones. Even at the time of this writing, new programs are about to be implemented. Students are therefore encouraged to contact the Center for International Education to get the latest information on Truman study abroad programs. The Center will also provide information regarding how study abroad program credits can be applied to the core curriculum requirement, the foreign language requirement, or in some cases the major requirement. Since it takes a long time to plan and finance a study abroad experience, students are strongly encouraged to find out about these exciting opportunities early, perhaps in their freshman year. The Center for International Education is located in Kirk Building 114, telephone 785-4076.

EXCHANGE PROGRAMS

These programs are the most affordable of all study abroad programs; however, they are generally highly selective, often with very specific requirements, and taught in the language of the country at a local accredited institution of higher education. The following programs are sponsored either by International Student Exchange Program (I.S.E.P.) or by Truman State University. The cost to the student is the cost of his/her tuition at Truman State plus room and board in the host country and transportation to and from the host country. For specific information regarding these programs including the cost, please contact the Center for International Education.

SEMESTER STUDY ABROAD PROGRAMS

Some programs are not offered every semester.

Argentina

C.C.I.S. Program (College Consortium for International Studies)
Universidad De Belgrano, Buenos Aires. This program is meant for students ranging from no Spanish language skills through advanced Spanish skills. It combines language instruction with either a closed curriculum offered in English or a wider curriculum of liberal arts courses offered in Spanish especially for international students. Students with advanced fluency also have the option of taking regular classes as direct enrollment.

Australia

AustralLearn (Sponsored by the U.S. Center for Australian Universities)

This consortium offers a choice of 15 sponsoring Universities from which to choose programs. All courses are open to students provided they meet the prerequisite for the courses. These Universities have Colleges of Architecture, Art and Design, Arts and Social Science, Economics and Commerce, Education, Engineering, Law, Medicine and Health Sciences, Music, Nursing, Science, Mathematics, and Humanities. Australian Studies are also available.

Bond University (Sponsored through Truman State University and the College Consortium of International Studies), Macquarie University, Sydney.

A semester or year-long program at one of the two private universities in Australia. Students take two to three courses in humanities, history, Australian studies, computer science, law, and business.

C.C.I.S. Program (College Consortium for International Studies)

University of Newcastle, Callaghan, Macquarie University, Sydney. Students may study for a semester or a year taking classes taught in English.

Austria

C.C.I.S. Program (College Consortium for International Studies)
Salzburg College, Salzburg. This program begins with a 1-week academic field trip through Germany. The program is focused on European civilization and contemporary issues, along with language competency. Several areas of concentration are offered, including European Studies, Communications, International Business, Studio Art and Photography, and Music Performance.

Brazil

C.I.E.E. (Council on International Educational Exchange)
University of São Paulo, São Paulo. This program offers required courses in the Portuguese language and Brazilian Studies, as well as other regular courses offered at the University of São Paulo. Because all courses are taught in Portuguese, students are required to have two years of college-level Spanish or Portuguese or one year of both. Academic year students have the option of spending the spring semester at the Universidade Federal de Bahia in Salvador.

Bulgaria

C.C.I.S. Program (College Consortium for International Studies)
University of Veliko Turnovo, Veliko Turnovo. The academic program provides an immersion in Bulgarian culture and language, as well as the opportunity to gain hands-on experience as an English instructor. Students take courses in Bulgarian culture and language, and also take part in a work/study program which allows students to earn 12 credit hours. Students receive a salary for their work which is the equivalent of a middle-range salary for full-time faculty member in Bulgaria.

C.C.I.S. Program (College Consortium for International Studies)
American University in Bulgaria, Blagoevgrad. Academic disciplines include American Studies, Anthropology, Business, Computer Science, Dance, Drama, Economics, English, Music, History, Journalism, Communications, Mathematics, Modern Languages, Philosophy, Political Science, Natural Science, Southeast European Studies, and Sociology. Classes taught in English.

Canada

C.C.I.S. Program (College Consortium for International Studies)
L'École de Langue Française et de Culture Québécoise of the Université du Québec à Chicoutimi, Saguenay-Lac-St-Jean. French language study at all levels. Courses at each level analyze the French language from the perspective of syntax, phonetics, and communicative competence. Courses such as Language and Civilization and Québec Culture are also offered. Students will live with French-speaking families.

Chile

C.I.E.E. (Council on International Educational Exchange)
Universidad de Chile and Pontificia Universidad Católica de Chile, Santiago. Students select courses in biology, chemistry, computer programming, ecological science, forestry technology, mathematics, and physics, as well as a two-week Chilean language and culture course. Because all courses are taught in Spanish, a minimum of three years of college-level Spanish is required.

China

C.C.I.S. Program (College Consortium for International Studies)
Nanjing University, Nanjing. This program offers 12-15 hours of study in the Far East. English courses are available in Chinese culture, history, and geography in addition to courses taught in all levels of Mandarin Chinese.
